

ALLIES NOT SATISFIED WITH THE GERMAN SITUATION

AERIAL MEET WILL CONTINUE OVER TUESDAY

Success Assured Dixon's First Affair; Many Planes Entered

All indications at noon were that the first day of the Mid-West Aerial Meet will be a marvelous success. Planes have been coming into the field since Sunday noon and are continuing to do so at the time of writing. The German Fokker, one of the largest planes used during the war, is already at the field and will take part in the events. The advance sale of tickets indicates one of the largest gatherings at an attraction of this kind. The field is in perfect condition and there is parking space for thousands of cars. Major Schroeder arrived this morning to take charge of the field events and will also talk at the Kiwanis Club luncheon to be held in their quarters Tuesday noon.

Tuesday's Program

The following is the program of events for Tuesday:

Grand Finale—Every ship in the air

It was announced this morning that the principals in the mid-air wedding this afternoon were to be Miss Hazel Wise and H. D. Miller, both well known young people, and that the ceremony would be performed by Rev. W. W. Moore.

Because of the accident at the Ashburn Field in Chicago yesterday afternoon in which Lieutenant Benjamin H. McBride was killed almost instantly, the fleet of army planes which were due to arrive here this morning, had not shown up at the noon hour.

While no official word had been received here, it was believed that the fleet had returned to their station in order to receive the new orders issued by the aviation department. The entire fleet which performed at Chicago yesterday was to participate in the two day meet given and the airplane pieces of Dixon post American Legion.

Children's Book Week at Library

Children's Book Week, beginning today, is being observed in the Dixon public library. Several new volumes of Miss Mary Wynn's "Children's Book Week" are being observed. The object is to stimulate interest of the children in reading good books and also to encourage parents to take an interest in the reading of their children. Parents are invited to visit the library this week and view the special books which are designed for children's reading. Several new volumes have been received during the past week for this week's observance. These are part of a special exhibit at the library this week together with other books and pamphlets on the plan which is being observed in other libraries throughout the nation.

Mother Finds Her Daughters After 22 Year Hunt for Them

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Danville, Ill., Nov. 12. — After searching for 22 years in all parts of the United States and Canada and spending a small fortune in an effort to locate her two kidnapped daughters, Mrs. Thomas Everman, of near Kankakee, has discovered that for many years she has resided within a hundred miles of her long lost children. One of the daughters, now Mrs. Ralph W. Wright, resides in Danville, and the other, Mrs. Charles Bolton, resides at Farmington, Ill.

Mrs. Everman said her husband deserted her in Decatur 22 years ago, taking their two little daughters, the youngest but six years old, with him. The reunion was brought about a few days ago when Mrs. Bolton and her mother, called to visit relatives at Arcola, Ill., at the same time.

CONFIDENCE AGAIN IN ASCENDANCE IN FINANCIAL CIRCLES

Banker Clews of New York Optimistic in Weekly Report

BY JAMES E. CLEWS

Wall Street, New York, Nov. 12. — Notwithstanding the fact that negotiations with foreign governments relating to the proposed reparations conference have been inclined to drag so seriously, investment conditions have continued to show material evidence of improvement. Demand for securities and an increasing degree of confidence have sustained values and apparently insured a much larger interest on the part of the public than has existed during recent weeks. The result has been a hopeful outlook as regards the immediate future with an apparent disposition to look on the brighter side of things in relation to some of the larger question still open, both internationally and domestically.

Strong Investment Demand

This strength of investment demand is illustrated by the prompt response of the market to the issue of $100,000,000 of bonds offered by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and almost immediately absorbed. Furthermore, the same direct response has been felt in connection with a number of minor financing operations. The encouraging attitude of the market has been aided by a tendency in various quarters to look for a period of abundant and relatively cheap money, due to the fact that commercial business is apparently quite thoroughly financed so that it is not likely to have to depend upon the resources of the banks in any materially greater degree than has been true during the recent past. Unexpectedly strong conditions have maintained themselves throughout the banking system. The Federal banks show for the week just past a higher reserve ratio of 76.5 with gold holdings practically intact and comparatively little additional strain upon the credit resources of the institutions. Present indications point to a large amount of turnover in the bond market for some time to come, with several important issues coming forward. The result is likely to be an upward movement in the price of existing securities due to the fact that there is a large amount of fluid capital seeking investment, while the principal banks of the country are disposed to use their surplus funds in the purchase of bonds and thereby to earn an income during the period of comparative dullness in customers' loans.

Railroads Continue Good Showing

One of the noteworthy aspects of the recent past in a business way is the excellent showing which railroad reports continue to make as they become public for the month of September. Traffic returns which had been thought likely to fall off when the peak of the crop moving season was over, have continued upward. A very large movement of basic materials is in progress and this has made up for such falling off as there has been in the export branches of the business. While there has been no definite information as to the effect of the report by the Administration with regard to the railroad question during the coming winter, there has been a decided gain in confidence on the part of investors generally who now are disposed to view the conservatism which will prevail in Administration circles and that, particularly in a Presidential year, it will be entirely possible to maintain the doing of Congress upon a moderate and stable footing. With the approach of the new session, the (Continued on Page 2)

DIXON OBSERVES FATHER-SON WEEK

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN BOYS, DADS STRESSED

Y. M. C. A. Takes Lead in Furthering Observance of Week

In the observance of Father and Son week, starting today, Mayor Palmer has issued a proclamation urging every person in our city to observe the week so far as possible. The proclamation is as follows:

"In these days of unrest, suffering and transition, when the old order of things is passing, attention needs to be called to the importance of conserving and strengthening the integrity of the home, especially those ties that bind father and son together. The most valuable asset of any city is its boys and the dominant character-building influence in the life of a boy should be that emanating from the home. Therefore, I, Frank D. Palmer, Mayor of the city of Dixon, Illinois, hereby designate the week beginning November 11 and ending November 17, 1923, to be known in this city as Father and Son week and earnestly urge its recognition in all ways that shall promote the ideal there expressed. Let our churches, schools, clubs and all other agencies for the unbuilding of the community arrange to have fitting exercises which shall encourage and emphasize the sacred relationship to the end that the father will become more the companion and guide of the son, and the son come more to appreciate the value of the father's association and counsel. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Executive Seal this 12th day of November in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-three."

Boys See Factories

Today is known as Civics day and educational tours have been made from the Y. M. C. A. during the day to factories and places of interest. Boys have been escorted to the various factories and told of the different processes used in manufacture of different articles. Tomorrow is Home Day. All fathers and sons who possible can, will arrange to spend the evening at home together. One father in talking to Mr. Hunt of the Y. M. C. A. who is heading up the week, says that he is fixing up his son's room at home. Hereafter any castoff furniture would do for the boy's room, but now he will have a real boy's things in it. This father feels his idea will give his son a greater desire to spend more of his evenings at home. Other fathers are entertaining fatherless sons at dinner with their own sons, while those fathers having radios will have an opportunity to listen to many different addresses on the father and son idea. Fred M. Hansen of Des Moines will speak from the Palmer School at Davenport at 7:30 while other addresses are being broadcasted from other stations.

Ex. Gov. Fifer is for U. S. in Court

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 12.—Ex-Governor Joseph W. Fifer in an address here yesterday morning at a local church on the United States government joining the World Court, said in part:

"I am very much in favor of the proposed measure and believe it should be adopted. I am in favor of it because I believe it will tend to put an end to war. I am in favor of it because I am opposed to all wars that can be avoided and because I believe that all international disputes should be settled by the peaceful means of arbitration."

"For these reasons I favored the League of Nations. As originally drafted, the League did not entirely meet my views but with amendments proposed by President Taft, I was heartily in favor of it and Mr. Wilson was willing to accept such amendments but the senate would not accept the League with the Taft amendments."

Kiwanis Club Will Observe Armistice

Reservations for the Armistice Day observance by the Dixon Kiwanis club tomorrow indicate one of the largest gatherings of the year according to Chairman Joseph W. Staples of the attendance committee. The regular weekly luncheon will be served at 12:10, this to be followed by a special program. Every member of the club is entitled to invite a guest on this occasion. Lieut. Charles "Daddy" Schick, past commander of the Illinois department, American Legion and a former resident of Dixon, Major Schroeder, who formerly held the world's record for aviation altitude; Major Ballington, state commander of the American Legion and Sherwood Dixon, commander of Dixon post, will be the speakers.

WHICH KIND OF A DADDY ARE YOU?

PRESIDENT BEGINS WORK ON MESSAGE OF MUCH IMPORT

His Political Future Will Depend Largely on His Efforts.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Nov. 12.—President Coolidge began today on his message to congress and upon the results of his efforts even his closest friends acknowledge will depend to a considerable degree his political future.

The principal subjects to be treated embrace agricultural relief, taxation, transportation, marine, government expenditures, immigration, reclamation, and international affairs, including the world court and the recently negotiated conventions with Mexico. Three subjects would seem likely to receive major consideration. They are agricultural relief, taxation and transportation. The President is expected by some to urge legislation to promote cooperative marketing and probably ask creation of an agency or authorization for an existing agency to sell American farm products abroad.

Some Tax Proposals

The tax proposals most probably will follow the outline of those announced today by the treasury department, with such minor modifications as republican leaders believed advisable. The President has received much advice relative to consolidation of railroad and may urge legislation to that end. It is reasonable to ask the measure of the approval of the proposal that congress reduce freight rates on farm products inasmuch as the Interstate Commerce Commission has instituted a rate inquiry. In international affairs, excepting the reference to the Mexico conventions, seem to those close to the President to be destined to occupy a secondary place. The greatest interest will be in the manner in which Mr. Coolidge treats the proposal made by President Harding that the United States accept membership in the permanent court of international justice.

DIXON BEATEN AFTER WHISTLE AT BELVIDERE

Poor Officiating is Feature of Game Saturday P. M.

The Dixon high school football squad suffered defeat at the hands of the fast Belvidere high school squad Saturday afternoon, chiefly because of the inability of officials to abide by the rules of the game, the final score being 13 to 6, in Belvidere's favor. Spectators who accompanied the team as well as most of the Dixon squad, allege that a touch down and free kick was permitted by the referee after he had blown the whistle at the close of the final period. The official stated that he may have unconsciously blown his whistle and then permitted play to proceed, which resulted in the touch down. The field on which the game was played resembled an ocean of waves and spectators were permitted to climb in on the gridiron, making it most difficult for the members of both teams. Early in the second period, Jones sent a pass to Philip, who sidestepped and twisted for a distance of 40 yards for the touchdown. Fahey failed to kick goal. Kyrnsorner, who has been out because of injuries substituted for Philip in the last five minutes of play.

Meiride's Daring Stunt

Most active of all planes was the scout flown by McBride. He would dive it straight at the earth, pull it up when it seemed too late and go bounding off. At last he made a sharp dive and rolled his ship, turning it completely over as it shot about not 200 feet from the ground. Suddenly as the ship was about to snap out of the roll, the motor spluttered and stopped. Quickly the plane fell into a spin and dropped straight for the earth. McBride kicked rudder and pushed the stick forward; the spectators could see that. But it was no use. He had not enough altitude to come out of the spin. The motor was more than half buried in the soft earth. Ten feet away was the rope, keeping back the crowd. McBride probably died fifteen minutes later. The ship is a total wreck. Upon the records of the air service the accident will be recorded. "Motor failure" will tell the story. No coroner's inquest can add to that statement.

Meet Goes On

There was a pause in the flying. A slight hush; then the motors renewed their roars and the remaining events on the program went off without a hitch.

NOTED PILOT MET DEATH IN AVIATION EVENTS IN CHICAGO

50,000 Saw Army Man Plunge to Tragic Death Sunday.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Lieut. Benjamin H. McBride, noted as a skillful pursuit pilot, was dashed to death yesterday at Ashburn flying field in sight of 50,000 persons gathered to see the exploits of army aviators in a huge Armistice day exhibition.

Lieut. McBride, a member of the pursuit group from Selfridge field, Mount Clemens, Mich., was flying a my MB-3 pursuit ship, a jaunty craft with a speed of 160 miles an hour and a 300 horsepower motor. He died because that motor failed.

Lieut. McBride was a married man. Two weeks ago his wife became the mother of a son. The pilot was 21 years old and was considered one of the most expert flyers in the air service. He was born in Atlanta, Ga., and was graduated from West Point in 1918 and from the flying school at Carswell field, Florida, in 1920. His wife and son live in Mount Clemens.

Day's Only Accident

The pilot's death was the only accident that marred the entire exhibition. McBride's Daring Stunt. Most active of all planes was the scout flown by McBride. As a tribute to the boys who served so faithfully and sacrificially in the World War and their employers might have an opportunity to celebrate Armistice Day and also attend the Dixon American Legion's Mid-West Flying meet at Dixon Aviation Field, the today went to press at noon, joining with Dixon business men, officials and bankers in observing a half holiday.

DIXON LEGION PUT ROCHELLE TO ROUT NEAR END OF GAME

Aerial Attack in Last Minutes of Play Won for Local Eleven

Rochelle's importations failed to function yesterday afternoon in the conflict with the Dixon Legion football squad and in the last three minutes of play in the final quarter, Vaughan, Dalton and Wampler figured in three passes which netted more than sixty yards and sent the bigskin across the opponent's line for the touchdown that spelled victory for Dixon.

The visitors came well prepared to engage in a bitter battle and were expectant of carrying away the honor. Garity, catcher for the Washington American basketball club, who plays basketball at Rockford during the winter months, occupied the full back position and played it well, making long gains when selected to carry the ball. While they should have been the best the visitors tried to defeat the Beloit Fairies eleven to defeat Dixon and some of his other team mates were expected. Countryman and George Moore, both former Dixon Legion men, played the entire game and their presence made it difficult for the Legion to call signals, the silent system being used.

Visitors Start Attack

Dixon kicked off at Rochelle and at once the visitors opened up a drive and telling assault upon the Dixon line. The visitors' line averaged 200 yards to the man with the exception of Countryman and this proved a hard task for the local to combat. In the first few minutes of play and after suffering a five yard penalty, Rochelle had worked the ball down to within eight yards of the Dixon goal and here they were held for downs. The visitors' line was wide and went out of bounds. Rochelle recovered the ball and it was their first down on Dixon's 18-yard line. Eight yards was the best the visitors could do in the center of the field.

Barry replaced Heinz in the second period. Rochelle renewed their assault upon the Dixon line and after working the ball up to Dixon's 25-yard line, Lazier, who had tried a drop kick which was wide and went out of bounds, Rochelle recovered the ball and it was their first down on Dixon's 18-yard line. Eight yards was the best the visitors could do in the center of the field.

CROWN PRINCE AT HIS PLACE IN CELLS TODAY

Fear His Presence in Germany May Provoke Trouble

Paris, Nov. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—A German note replying to the protest of the council of ambassadors against the release of the Crown Prince was received today. It is understood to be of an unsatisfactory nature to the allies and the members of the ambassadors' council were hurriedly notified to convene this afternoon.

It is understood the German note takes the stand that Frederick William possesses the same rights as other German citizens and that the German government has no reproach to make against him.

Brussels, Nov. 12.—The Belgian government will support any measures 66 plenipotentiaries agreed on by the allied council of ambassadors regarding Ex-Crown Prince Frederick William under the treaty of Versailles.

ENGLAND IS CURIOUS

London, Nov. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Great Britain is not likely to take individual action looking to the execution of Ex-Crown Prince Frederick William from Germany. Nor is it at all probable that she will stress his tenuous claim as to whether more is behind the incident than would be implied merely a consideration of his personal insignificance.

No one attaches much importance to the statements of the prince or the German government that he will abstain from meddling in politics and forbidding publication of socialist newspapers.

WILSON STILL HOLDS FAITH IN PRINCIPLE

Washington, Nov. 12.—A reaffirmation of the faith in the ultimate triumph of the principles for which he stood was spoken by Woodrow Wilson to friends and members on an Armistice Day pilgrimage yesterday to his home.

An added word which he said he could not "refrain from saying," the former President's declaration, an address to the chief address he had just concluded, came impressively. "I am not one of those," he declared, "that have the least anxiety about the triumph of the principles I have stood for."

"I have seen fools resist Providence before and I have seen their destruction, as will come upon these again—utter destruction and contempt. That we shall prevail is as sure as that I am here."

A cheering throng packed the street and all hearts were set to the music of the hymn "The Star-Spangled Banner" as Mr. Wilson appeared on the porch of his residence to deliver his second address in less than twenty-four hours and the third he has made since leaving the White House.

Public Thank Offering Meeting Held

The public thankoffering meeting of the W. M. S. of Bethel U. E. church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Weyant, 615 East Morgan street Friday evening. The meeting was preceded by a picnic supper at 6 o'clock to which all did ample justice. The meeting opened at 8 o'clock by all singing, "The Whole Wide World," after which Mrs. Hill read the Scripture lesson taken from John 13:13-15:24. Several led in short earnest prayers, after which was given a beautiful piano duet by Misses Jessie Weyant and Bessie Beckingham. The lesson topic, "Militarism Reaction, and Liberalism," was developed by Mrs. Norberg. It is encouraging to see Japan pushing to the front in her Christian and liberal views. Miss Gladys Wolber pleased all with a reading, "Cicero's Call," followed by a "Thank Offering Box" convention. It was interesting to know how each box was received and dealt with in the various homes. All took part in reading the thank offering "gems" which was followed by a vocal duet by Mrs. Louis Zigler and Miss Minnie Zigler. It was beautifully rendered. Miss Lona Beckingham read the leaflet, "The Gift of Gold," which is really true to life. Little Cleora Wadsworth spoke a pretty piece on the offering with her basket in hand. "Tell It Today," was sung by all while the offering was being lifted. The amount collected was $13.20 which was very good. Business meeting and roll call followed. As this was a campaign for new members meeting six new members were added to the society. Including the men and women who were in attendance. The meeting closed by repeating John 13:15.

dry, rub it with butter and keep it closely covered.

Paint Spots. Paint or varnish spots on glass may be removed with turpentine or alcohol or scraped off with a dull knife.

Kitchen Cabinets. Kitchen cabinets should be emptied of their contents at least once a month and washed thoroughly.

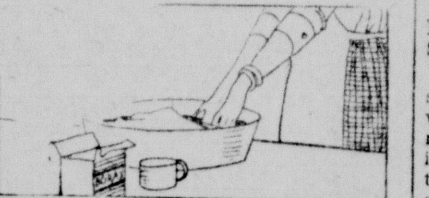

Cracked Dishes. The use of cracked or nicked dishes for holding food is most unsanitary as the cracks or chips make an excellent place for germs to lurk unless great care is exercised.

Yellowed Clothes. Clothes that have become yellow from lying around may be whitened by boiling in water to which kerosene has been added in the proportion of a tablespoon to a gallon of water.

Piano Keys. Clean piano keys with wood alcohol. If this is not available, the best substitute is clear warm water, with no soap.

Waxed Floors. To keep a waxed floor in good condition always sweep it with a good hair brush and dust with a dry mop.

Chocolate Stains. Chocolate stains may be removed from washable fabrics by soaking them for half an hour in cold borax and water. Then pour boiling water through the stain and wash in the ordinary way.

Air Closets. A closet should be aired when the pest of the house is dried, and should be cleaned when the room from which it leads is cleaned.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

The vegetables of late autumn are preferable to canned summer ones or shipped-out-of-season delicacies. Parsnips and carrots, rutabagas and squash add color and beauty to the dinner table.

You will enjoy serving parsnip fritters and the guests will enjoy eating them.

Carrot straws are almost too good to be true. Squash croquettes are different but "mummy."

And sweet potato apples will go "right to the spot."

Parsnip Fritters.
Six parsnips, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, cracker crumbs, 1 egg.
Boil parsnips in slightly salted boiling water until tender. Plunge into cold water and slip skins. Mash and season with salt, pepper, sugar and butter. Make into small flat cakes. Roll in cracker crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten with two tablespoons cold water, roll again in crumbs and fry in a spider in butter and bacon fat until a delicate brown.

Carrot Straws.
Four medium sized carrots, 4 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup cream, 1 lemon, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons minced fresh mint leaves, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 egg.

Wash and scrape carrots. Cut in narrow strips. Drop into boiling salted water and boil 15 minutes. Drain and put in top of double boiler. Add butter, sugar, cream, grated rind and juice of lemon and mint leaves. Cook until soft. Beat egg slightly and stir into mixture as it is removed from hot water.

Squash Croquettes.
Cut squash in halves and scrape out seeds. Bake. Scoop out of shell and mash. There should be two cups. Drain and put in top of double boiler. Add one cup milk, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, two tablespoons butter, two eggs, one cup nut meats coarsely chopped and 1/2 teaspoon of paprika. The eggs should be well beaten. If too moist to handle add the cracker crumbs and let stand until firm. Shape into balls, roll in cracker crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten with two tablespoons water, roll again in crumbs and fry in deep hot fat. Drain on brown paper.

Sweet Potato Apples.
Six sweet potatoes, 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons cider or grape juice, 16 cloves.

Wash and cook sweet potatoes until tender. Remove skins and mash with butter, salt and pepper. Cool, form into balls and stick a clove in opposite ends. Melt sugar in iron spider, add boiling water, lemon juice cider or grape juice and cook until smooth sirup is formed. The melted sugar will lump when the water added, but these lumps will disappear when the sirup is thick and the apples glazed and a delicate brown. Serve in the baking dish.

GOOD ROADS.

We quote from the official organ of the Farmers' League:

"A farmer of the famous Aroostock potato-growing section of Maine, has 160 acres devoted to potatoes, seven and one-half miles from market, producing 24,000 barrels of potatoes a year, and found it impossible to deliver the potatoes in season."

"On account of the road grade between farm and railroad, one team of horses could haul 20 barrels of potatoes at a trip. It would have taken 1,200 working days with the team—just a little more than three years—to haul the potato crop to market. It would take twenty teams and twenty drivers to do the work in season, which would cost more than $6,000."

"A motor truck was put to work, and based on the old price of 25 cents a barrel for hauling the potatoes by horses, the truck paid for itself the first season, hauling 1,000 barrels."

This is not an advertisement of the motor truck. Any motor truck would do it, provided it had the road and no motor truck could do it unless it had a good road over which to travel.

This is not an advertisement of potato farming. The same economy may be had with any produce, whether lettuce or grain, hay or onions, alfalfa or corn, if there is a good road over which to haul it. No crop, no matter how profitable to raise, is as profitable to sell, if it has to be marketed over a poor road.

This is an advertisement of the need of good roads!

For if there has been no heavy road grade, which cut down horse hauling to the point where the price was prohibitive, the motor truck, which could make it, could have made it at twice the speed or with double the load and half the cost.

Mud stalls the horse. Grade cuts down its load. Mud stalls the truck. Grade cuts down its speed. "Load" and "speed," as used here, are both synonyms for "profit." Good roads, proper grades, quick sure, heavy hauling at low cost... that's the answer to the farmers' need of some way to make his business pay better.

When the farmers of the United States unitedly say that they must have good roads everywhere, they will get them!

JOLLY.

Claiming she is 113, Mrs. Pauline Urdang says this is a pretty good old world—though she lives in a home for the aged. Her recipe for a long life is to be good-natured. That undoubtedly would prolong our lives by its soothing effect on the nervous system. Also, it's the only way to make life worth living. The chief victim of bad temper is its owner.

FALSE PROPHETS.

Since time immemorial it has been the theorist and the non-producer who has called "wolf" when there was no cause for alarm. Disastrous panics, business depressions, financial crashes and disruption of the public peace of mind have been the price the public has paid these false harbingers of disaster.

The year 1923, which now approaches the culmination of twelve months of more than usual prosperity for the United States, has not been without its false alarms of "wolf." Every step of business improvement and of the general spread of prosperity was provocation for predictions of business inflation and approaching panic and retrenchment. In spite of the calamity howlers and Europeans affairs the United States can complain of nothing more serious than decreasing costs of food, higher wages and an increasing shortage of labor.

Unfortunately for the general equanimity of mind and business, the pessimistic tongue wags faster and louder than the conservative and optimistic. In fact, the present year has found the pessimist quite unchallenged in his prognostications of hardship and suffering, until a part of the American press ventured forth with a prosperity and assurance platform of "wheat is not king, high wages is better than cheap labor, Europe can't wreck our prosperity, only our own politicians can hurt us, and this is the day of opportunity."

Do not every one of the five planks in that platform disprove the cries of "wolf" and settle existing good times on a solid and enduring foundation?

DIAMONDS.

The entire Kimberley diamond fields in South Africa were once owned by Ed. Streetner. He mined enough of the precious stones to give him a small fortune. Then he lost confidence and sold the property for $7500. He thought it was "worked out."

Ed died the other day in London. If he had kept the Kimberley mines he'd have been the world's richest man when he died—worth around a billion dollars. Opportunity knocks often enough. Trouble is, she usually wears a disguise that only a few can penetrate. Super-successes have a sort of intuition or sixth sense.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 16—THE CIRCUS FAIRY

"How do they make pink lemonade?" asked Nancy.

The next person Nancy and Nick met in Dixie Land was the circus fairy. They didn't know he was a fairy until he told them so. But after he had waved a little stick and changed himself into a parrot and back again, and into a donkey and back again, and into a gold fish and back again, they believed him. He explained that he was in Dixie Land to select the lemonade-peanut crop for next year. "I've just been over to the lemon orchard and the trees are simply loaded," he said. "Great big fellows as yellow as canary birds!" "How do they make pink lemonade?" asked Nancy. "Out of pink lemons," said the circus fairy quickly. "Or that is, they would make it out of pink lemons if there were any pink lemons to make it out of. Perhaps they put roses in it. I'll watch next time and see and I'll write you a letter and tell you. If you'll give me your address. But there! We're spending all our time talking about lemons! As though the elephants cared a whoop-dee about lemonade! Why, they are staying awake nights dreaming—I mean worrying—about peanuts, and it's up to me to see that the crop of peanuts in Dixie Land is bigger than ever. Come along, kiddies! Left, right, left, right, step to the peanut field. Here we are!" "Why there isn't a tree!" cried Nick. "I thought nuts grew on trees!" "Not peanuts!" explained the circus fairy. "They grow on these little bushes in the sand." "Why, I don't see a nut!" said Nancy, dropping down on her knees. "That's because the peanut bushes are too modest to boast. But the nuts are there just the same. As soon as a nut begins to grow on the end of a little branch, the bush shoves the nut down under the sand to do the rest of its growing, and to get ripe. I'm going to peep! Come along and peep, too, if you wish." So Nancy and Nick followed the circus fairy along the sandy rows, and every here and there where he scraped away patches of sand wasn't there a fine peanut hiding underneath! "My, but there are a lot!" said Nick. "I don't think the elephants need to worry," nodded the circus fairy happily. "Or the children, either. Now I'll go and tell the peanut man to get his roaster ready, and the paper-bag man to get his paper bags ready. Everything is in fine shape in Dixie Land!" With that he disappeared. A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Give none occasion to the adversary to speak reproachfully.—1 Tim. 5:14.

DON'T EXPECT MEN TO MATCH COLORED SILKS

Dixon Salesladies Indicate Men Are Color Blind.

Ladies, don't send your husbands to a store to match that piece of silk if it even approximate similarity in color is desired. Salesladies at Dixon stores heartily agree with Dr. W. E. Castle, Harvard university professor, that men, and only men, are color blind, and on the whole do not possess the ability to distinguish various shades of color as accurately as women.

Men Are Color Blind. Dixon salesladies, interviewed today, admitted that men are color blind, arriving at this conclusion after having witnessed a harassed male hopelessly involved in attempting to match some piece of goods or silk thread for his wife.

"They generally become discouraged," said one saleslady, "and leave it entirely to us."

"Oh, yes, if a mistake is made, they place the blame on us."

Make Choice Yourself. "If you need just a little more red silk to finish that party dress, Mrs. Housewife, or some green cloth to match the portiers, it would be advisable to make the selection yourself and not rely upon the possibly faulty vision of your husband, who probably isn't particularly enthusiastic about that kind of shopping anyway."

But, referring once more to Dr. Castle's conclusion, sons of color blind men never are afflicted with that characteristic, but the sons of his daughters are apt to inherit the trait.

Welcome Men Customers. Men customers, however, are eagerly welcomed by some salesladies, especially by those reigning at the hosiery counters.

"I can sell a pair of silk hose to each of five men, while I am attempting to wait upon one woman customer," a saleslady told the newspaper man.

"A man approaches the counter."

New Orleans.—Pink Allen believes in cleanliness.

"Give a boy a clean shave and a haircut and a bath and he just naturally ain't gonna git no meanin' less he's natchally mean, he says. As you might guess, Pink is a barber."

When he held the formal opening of Pink Allen's Tonsorial Parlor, new, modern, sanitary, six-chair, negro barber shop, he did it with prayer.

Captain N. MacNeal, negro Volunteers of America worker, led.

"Men!" exhorted Captain MacNeal, "let your lives be free from spots as these mirrored walls. Keep your reputations clean like this shop is clean."

"Mistah Dumbbell! Mistah Dumbbell!"

Considerable amusement was caused in the lobby of a local hotel when a bellboy, in a loud voice, asked Mr. Dumbbell.

Inquiry at the desk revealed that H. T. Dumbbell was registered from New York.

The bellboy, after wearing out a dime's worth of shoe leather, confidently said that "they ought to be a lot of guys' answer to that monicker."

He served in the Louisiana Legislature, in Congress, and finally was elevated to the senatorship. Who says men are not interested in fashions? Take the little matter of hosiery.

In the window of a prominent Canal street shop was installed a model—"demonstrate" a certain nationally advertised brand of hosiery. She was young, beautiful.

Behind a semi-transparent screen she sat, shown in silhouette, while she put on hosiery and other things. Mind you, this was for ladies. Yet the interest of men packed Canal street for days and days and days. Traffic was blocked. If women wanted to see the hosiery exhibit they had to go inside the store. The only way they could have watched it from the street was to perch on the shoulders of the tight-packed men.

first a rough one. But the experimenter made a porter tell of a very interesting experiment made to determine the worth of the telephone to six representative business houses in a medium sized town.

The experiment covered a hardware store, a bank, a clothing store, garage, law office and grocery. Only out-going calls were recorded.

Rural calls were figured at five cents per mile but in the figuring the short-haul calls within the city exchange limits, the experimenter took the average number of these calls and actually walked to and from the various places called.

It was found that these calls were about 1,000 feet each, consuming twenty minutes, or 3,000 feet per hour. The average of $100 a month was taken to cover the cost of messenger service which was considered fair, inasmuch as some of the business could be transacted by messengers, but some of it would have to be done by the executive or proprietor.

The average cost of each call was figured at sixteen cents a call, or forty-eight cents an hour. The record was kept for one week of six days, eight hours constituting a day. The result checked up as follows:

Hardware, profit of 2,002.15 per cent on investment in telephone service; banking, profit of 856.89 per cent on telephone investment; clothing, profit of 2,714.84 per cent; garage, profit of 1,795.11 per cent; law office, 1,032.00 per cent; grocery, 5,517.33 per cent.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHER-TON TO DEATRICE GRIM-
SHAW

It has been quite a while since I wrote you, dear Bee, but I have really had nothing very pleasant to write. In fact I was a little bit ashamed to write and tell you all that is in my mind and heart and I knew that if I sat down to talk to you on paper that is just what I should do.
Of course you know that Sam is regaining his eyesight rapidly and, strange as it may seem, I think I am happier with Sam blind than I am with him seeing. I presume it is because we are both so arrogant. Sam insists that I shall do exactly as he wishes me to and I insist that I shall have some individuality and opinion of my own. We split on that rock continually.
It has almost come to an open rupture again, dear Bee, and I would be very miserable were it not Sam's cousin, Jimmie Congdon, a young man whom Mr. Hamilton took on to be Sam's secretary and incidentally Sam's eyes. The boy is charming. I have never met a man who is as unselfish. Do not write to me to be careful and not get unduly interested in him for he is at least 10 years younger than I.
I did not start this letter to write about my own affairs. Like everybody else nowadays I am much interested in the movies. In fact, that is about the only amusement that I allow myself. Of course Sam cannot go, consequently I seldom go to them in the evening. But usually I take in the supper show or rather the one which goes on at 5 o'clock.

IT IS UP TO YOU
Not to be Disappointed

We cannot urge you too strongly to place your orders for Christmas cards early, as in the past there have been entirely too many customers disappointed in making a late selection and not being able to secure the card desired or have it engraved in ample time.

You can appreciate that it is impossible for us to estimate the quantity that will be sold of the various numbers, and we cannot take the chance of running up large quantities of every number to avoid any shortage. We naturally try to arrange our stock so that we have as little stock on hand at the end of the season as possible.

Therefore, we urge you to give your orders immediately, so as to permit us to make re-runs on those numbers that show the greatest sales. Toward the end of the season, this is impossible and customers will then have to be satisfied to make first, second and third choice.

America's Favorite Songs

BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.
Julia Ward Howe, daughter of a New York banker, wrote "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." The poem was printed in the Atlantic Monthly and Mrs. Howe got the princely sum of $3,000 for it.

At the beginning of the Civil war the need was deeply felt for a new national hymn to meet new and exciting conditions—one that would be the great peace song, yet the war song of the nation. At the request of many prominent Union men, a committee was appointed to select such a hymn. The committee waited three months and found none of the 1,500 contributions suitable. The committee had posted prizes of $250 each for poetry and music.

Mrs. Howe was ready to meet the emergency. She was a literary prodigy from childhood. In December, 1861, she and her husband visited Washington. While there she saw the homecoming march of some troops and began to sing some army songs in which the party joined. One of the songs was "John Brown." Dr. Clarke, Mrs. Howe's pastor, asked her to write words worthy of the stirring tune.

And she did—in the gray light of the next day's dawn. She died Oct. 17, 1910, with the memory of Abraham Lincoln urging a vast audience in Washington to "sing it again."

Mine eyes have seen the glory
Of the coming of the Lord
He is tramping out the vintage
Where the grapes of wrath are stored.
He has loosed the fateful lightning
Of His terrible swift sword:
His truth is marching on.

Glory, glory, hallelujah!
Glory, glory, hallelujah!
Glory, glory, hallelujah!
His truth is marching on.

I have seen Him in the watchfires
Of a hundred circling camps:
They have builded Him an altar
In the evening dew and damp.
I can read His righteous sentence
By the dim and flaring lamps.
His day is marching on.

He has sounded forth the trumpet
That shall never call retreat;
He is sitting on the hearts of men
Before His judgment seat:
Oh, be swift, my soul, to answer Him!
Be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on.
In the beauty of the lilies

Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in His bosom
That transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men free,
Let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on.

THE QUESTION
Player of team "A" tosses a forward pass, which is received by an eligible player. Said eligible player catches the pass while running at full speed but fails to get a good hold on the ball. After taking several steps the ball eludes the player's grasp, and because of the player's momentum it is hurled a considerable distance into the air ahead of him. The ball, while in the air, strikes the back of an opposing player. The ball bounded from the back of this player into the hands of the original receiver of the pass, who had not yet checked his speed after fumbling the ball. Catching the ball for the second time, he continued on his way, crossing the opposition's goal line. Is such a play legal?

THE ANSWER
Such a play is positively legal. A similar play came up several years ago in a game between Ohio State and Illinois, resulted in a touchdown for Illinois and beat Ohio State out of a "Big Ten" title. The original player who received the pass, then fumbled, was eligible to again recover the ball before it touched the ground.

SUFFICIENT CAUSE

DUNTILE
Builds Better Buildings Cheaper

BETTER buildings because Duntile is a better building unit. It has a hollow center running horizontally, providing the same insulation against heat and cold as the wall of a thermos bottle. It is so dense that dampness cannot creep through. It cannot burn. Age improves it. It places no limitations on the architect or contractor. It has the strength to build a factory or office building and the light weight to build a bungalow or garage.

Cheaper buildings because Duntile cost less than other building materials. They are laid in the wall more rapidly and with one-third the labor of brick or stone. They save at least 30 per cent on mortar. No tarring or lath required. And after the building is up there is no upkeep or repair expense.

We will be glad to have you investigate Duntile.

No Effort Being Made to Find Missing Polo Merchant

Polo, Ill.—Apparently no effort is being made, either by his family or local authorities to locate F. H. Graybill, 65, Polo grocer, who disappeared several weeks ago when he became involved in domestic and business troubles, and vanished while Mrs. Graybill was attending a prayer meeting, leaving a note stating he could endure things no longer. The grocery store and stock have been disposed of to settle his debts, and the creditors appear to be satisfied and have entered no suits, while his family state that they have neither seen nor heard of him. He left home with practically no money, and later was seen in Mendota and still later in LaSalle.

Mt. Vernon, Ill.—Not even during the boom period of the World War has there been so many men employed in the shops of the Mt. Two thousand, one hundred and five workmen are now employed with the possibility of the payroll swelling to 3,000 within a short time, the report says. The present payroll does not include the foundry which is closed at present.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Clare Jewett in love with the Reverend Daniel Gilchrist, marries Jerry Goodkind for his money. Daniel is dismissed from the fashionable Church of the Nativity in New York because of his radical sermons.

"Overcoat Hall," a refuge for the unemployed, is established by Gilchrist. Goodkind, Jerry's father, calls and orders Daniel to cease seeing Clare, who frequently visits the hall to help Gilchrist.

Pearl Hennig comes in and warns Daniel that her husband is out to "get" him. Clare comes to tell that she has left Jerry. Daniel sends her back home and she returns to her husband.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Ain't you well, Mr. Gilchrist?" she asked, alarmed.

"Just tired," he said, not moving. "Maybe you ain't believin' hard enough," she said naively. He looked up now. It was what he had needed. He smiled at her and straightened.

"It's most time for the meeting," she added.

"Good evening, Mrs. Mulligan," said Mary Margaret pleasantly.

"It is not," the red-faced woman retorted.

The others held the evening in better repute, however, and returned Mary Margaret's greeting with good grace, and that of Gilchrist, too.

"I guess we're early," said Mr. Hennig to Daniel.

"Yes," followed up his wife. "I wanted to speak to you—about Mr. Hennig's pants."

"Mr. Hennig's what?" asked Daniel curiously.

"Pants," reiterated Mrs. Hennig. "I took out a spot—with gasoline—and hung 'em on the fire escape that runs across from this house, and tonight they was gone, and I think you ought to look into your lodgers."

"I will," said Gilchrist, nodding. "Good evening, everybody."

The others acknowledged the greeting of a tall, angular Jewess, a garment worker, but almost scholarly in appearance.

"Good evening, Miss Levinson," said Daniel.

"I've brought back your book," she said, handing a volume to Gilchrist.

"What've you been reading?" queried Mrs. Hennig.

"George Bernard Shaw," the girl answered evenly.

"I s'pose you ain't read 'The Sherk'?"

"We've been reading 'Caesar and Cleopatra' together," put in Gilchrist.

"That's where we got the quotation on the board. I've jumbled it a bit. He turned to the board and read:

And so, to the end of history, hate shall breed hate, murder shall breed murder, until the gods create a race that can understand."

"That's it, isn't it?" said Miss Levinson. "A race that—"

A door swung open violently interrupted her. It was Pearl Hennig, breathless.

"Mr. Gilchrist!" she demanded. Daniel turned to her calmly.

"Oh, it's you, Pearl. I thought you'd gone."

"No—I've been watchin' and I've got to speak to you—quick!" She was twitching nervously.

"In just a few minutes!" Daniel turned back to Miss Levinson.

"Now!" shouted Pearl excitedly. "Joe's out there!"

Mrs. Mulligan reacted the disturbance of her dose.

"Aw, shut up!" she blurted. "Mrs. Mulligan!" admonished Gilchrist.

"You—"

The arrest of Adams was made by Sheriff Ora Lenon of this city at the executive mansion, where the chief was drawn to him, it was said, by the fact that he has recently been riding about in a very expensive automobile. He was paroled from Madison County officials said. May, the Madison County sheriff said, and disappeared immediately. Sheriff Lenon said Adams was employed in the executive mansion shortly afterward.

christ, "Pearl—you're interrupting—you were saying, Miss Levinson?"

"We seem to have hated every thing different from ourselves—Miss Levinson went on—"In station, or race, or religion."

Pearl stood by, an agitated creature at bay.

"Yes," said Daniel, quite calmly. "It's stupid and instinctive. I've noticed we're inclined to blame a man for a pug nose—if ours is Roman. Some day we'll get over the idea that all who differ from us are villains and that we should hate each other instead of trying to understand each other."

It was on the battlements that I came to believe a man's life might well be given to teaching and preaching—love!"

A crash drowned the last word, as a half-brick came hurtling through the window and dropped at Gilchrist's feet. There were screams and a general rush for cover.

Gilchrist alone stood his ground. "Don't be alarmed," he said easily. "It's only some hoodlum."

"It's Joe!" screamed Pearl. "I seen him in front. That's why I couldn't get out. Somebody got fer the police."

There was a general movement toward the door.

"No!" commanded Gilchrist, and they halted.

"He's got other men with him," Pearl pleaded. "He'll kill you!"

The outer door slammed. She threw herself against the entrance to the room.

"Here he comes! Don't let him in! Somebody help me!"

"Stop aside, Pearl," Daniel commanded. She did so, and George F. Goodkind entered. "It's only Mr. Goodkind," Gilchrist added.

"Yes," said Goodkind, "and your neighbors are calling."

Agitation spread in the little group. They huddled together like sheep in a thunder storm, exchanging frightened glances.

Then came an ominous rumbling. Saccato shouts sounded above the noise of clamping feet.

The door was swung open. Reeling, Joe Hennig, stumbling, followed by a muttering mob. At the sight of her husband, Pearl had run to Gilchrist for protection. He put a reassuring arm about her shoulder.

"C'mon, we'll shoot this guy—" Hennig was blustering with a snarl on his face. He looked about the group and then caught sight of Gilchrist and his wife.

"By God," he shouted; "caught in the act!" He turned to the herd behind him. "That's my wife!"

Gilchrist made no move. "Caught in what act, Joe?" he asked calmly.

"You—" Hennig's thick tongue and Gilchrist's case halted him. "Tell them what we're here for—your Grubby," said Daniel.

Grubby moved toward the back-ground.

"I don't want to get in no trouble," he said, evasively.

The halcyon figure of Umanski moved through the crowd. Catching Hennig by the shoulder the Pole forced him to his knees.

"I'll tell you," he shouted at the cowering man.

"Umanski!" protested Gilchrist. "I tell you, Hennig," went on Umanski. "Mr. Gilchrist bear tend to everybody. And now when he need friend, nobody knows nothing. Well, I know. I know anybody hurt him getta lick me."

"No—please—Umanski!" Daniel implored.

Umanski had held a threatening fist above Joe.

"Shall I?" he asked.

"No—no," said Gilchrist and slowly the Pole backed away and Hennig rose to his feet, his bravery restored by rescue.

"I'll show you the kind of fake that's been foolin' you. He got kicked out of the church. He was a spy for the people that live on labor and he came to the mines while he was on strike and ran away with my wife."

"It wasn't him," protested Pearl. "She says that 'cause she's stuck on him."

"Well, you're workin' for him, ain't yuh?"

"Your wife's working in a store uptown," said Gilchrist. The remark was received with jeers.

"My wife's workin' Sixth avenue," said Hennig with a sneer for her shame and a touch of self-pity for his own. "She's walkin' the streets!"

"That's a lie," shouted Daniel. "I heard from a pal she picked up last night."

Gilchrist turned to Pearl expecting to see her head held high in scorn and refutation. Instead he saw it bowed.

"Pearl!" he said, loath to believe. "It is a lie?"

"No," she said, brokenly. "It's true."

The contemptuous rumble of vindication came from the leering, swaying mob and drowned her weeping.

CHAPTER XXI
The Sign

THE bowed head took the taunts and jeers for only a moment.

Then Pearl Hennig, with a hardness that was new to her but as old to her kind as self-defense is old, rose and turned jointly on Gilchrist as well as the mob in defiance.

"Yes, it's true," she repeated, bitterly. "Why wouldn't it be?"

She faced Gilchrist. "I tried to have strength—like you told me—and I had a job—but when the other girls got wise—they ain't no better than I am."

She gave way before his calm, steady gaze.

"Anyway—" she said, haltingly. "I lied. I am walkin' the streets. I ain't no good. I ain't fit to live."

Slowly she started to sink at his feet. He caught her up.

"Pearl!" he said softly.

She pulled to free herself.

"For Christ's sake, ain't you done with me now?" she said, half protest, half surprise.

"For Christ's sake—" said Gilchrist, reverently. "No." He put his arm about her shoulder.

Joe Hennig stirred restlessly on unsteady feet.

"It's all a fake," he shouted. "Ain't you fellows on? He got every rotten woman in the neighborhood workin' for him. Your wives ain't safe. Your kids ain't safe. Ask Tony Maida. He turned to a swarthy Italian in the group.

"Didn't he bring your kid in here—and keep her—against her will? Didn't he?"

"That's what he done," said Maida, sullenly. The mob stirred again. There were rumbles of half-hushed suggestions of violence. Hennig heard them with welcome.
